

The Family Bible Challenge

Saint John's Reads

join us for the Great BIBLE Challenge

Train children up in the right way, and when old they will not stray. – Proverbs 22:6

You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your might. Keep these words that I am commanding you today in your heart. Recite them to your children and talk about them when you are at home and when you are away, when you lie down and when you rise. – Deuteronomy 6:5-7

“I want my children to know the Bible,” is the emphatic statement clergy and Christian educators hear often from households. We want to know scripture, and we want our children to know scripture as well. If you are like this, then join The Bible Challenge and become a Bible reading household by pledging to the Family Bible Challenge.

The average church only has 40 hours in a given year to influence the life of a child. The average parent has 3,000 hours per year to influence a life. Think about it. You are your child's most influential spiritual teacher. The gift of your time will build their confidence and faith in God.

Without your commitment and attention, the church can do little to make a spiritual impact upon your child. A study of households who regularly attend church found that few parents discuss spiritual issues with their children. In another survey of 80,000 people, 87% claim it is of great importance to understand scripture. Throughout the Bible God uses families as a way to tell a story of love, forgiveness, reconciliation and healing. The Bible is God's family story. You and your family are the continuation of God's story.

The purpose of the Family Bible Challenge is to:

- invite families to become fully engaged in The Bible Challenge.
- explore how the church can support families in reading an age appropriate Bible.
- share how the church and families grow together and are strengthened in their relationship with God through regular Bible reading.

Reading and learning the Bible together as a family does the following:

- helps families grow closer.
- opens communication.
- helps kids know that faith practice begins at home.
- transforms our lives every day and all the time.

Let's team up and discover how The Bible Challenge will engage your household. We have provided several resources for you in the following pages. You may find others that work better for your family. We want to hear from you as you move through this process. Remember, we are focusing on the Old Testament for Fall 2013 through Summer 2014 and the New Testament starting Fall 2014.

Bibles to Read as a Family

Read The Spark Story Bible – This children’s Bible is ideal for ages two through second grade (visit: www.sparkbibles.org to order it). This story book is nicely illustrated, theologically sound, engaging, and thought provoking. Mr. Squiggles worms through every story and keeps children’s attention. The Spark Story Bible engages both reader and listener with activities and questions. It captures important biblical stories that children can appreciate and avoids stories that are inappropriate for children.

Read The Story for Kids (Zondervan)– This seamless collection of Bible stories has been stitched together into one continuous narrative that reads like a children’s book. Boring and repetitive parts of the Bible are eliminated. There is also an adult version of this book simply called The Story, which is excellent reading for any parent. After reading The Story for Kids your child and you will have a much better understanding of the Bible. Visit: www.thestory.com to order.

Read Deep Blue Kids Bible – We recommend this new Common English Bible for children 7 to 12. This translation introduces us to a crew of friends, Asia, Edgar, and Kat, who dive deep with us in our reading, asking the hard questions, navigating us from place to place, revealing explanations for difficult stories, and helping to equip us with rock solid faith. Visit: www.deepbluekidsbible.com to order it.

Read The DK Children’s Illustrated Bible – This gives us the best known Bible stories appealing to the early reader, told in clear, lively language. Parents will learn as well while reading with their children. Visit: www.dk.com children’s illustrated Bible to order.

Read My First Message – This is a children’s version of the best-selling adult paraphrase of the Bible called The Message by Eugene Peterson, a pastor and teacher, who brings the original biblical language alive to the modern reader with a paraphrase of Scripture using contemporary language. Visit: www.messagebible.com to order.

Read The Jesus Storybook Bible: Every Story Whispers His Name - by Sally Lloyd-Jones. The Moonbeam Award Gold Medal Winner in the religion category, The Jesus Storybook Bible tells the Story beneath all the stories in the Bible. At the center of the Story is a baby, the child upon whom everything will depend. Every story whispers his name. From Noah to Moses to the great King David—every story points to him. He is like the missing piece in a puzzle—the piece that makes all the other pieces fit together. From the Old Testament through the New Testament, as the Story unfolds, children will pick up the clues and piece together the puzzle.

How do we study the Bible as a family?

Here are some ideas and tips to help you and your children in The Bible Challenge. Don’t worry about making it “perfect”; just keep going. Tip #1, 2, and 7 will help with this.

1. Pick a readable story Bible – There is a rich selection of Bibles now available for children, which are far more engaging for most children than a traditional adult Bible [see above].

2. Get excited about reading the Bible – Children imitate the emotions of their parents. When we are excited, they share our excitement. Reading the Bible is a spiritual practice that allows us to enrich our lives with our children. We have an incredible once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to help them know of God’s inspired Word and life saving story. Get started with the story of creation in the Book of Genesis. The Old Testament has some of the best stories in the entire Bible. Read stories of struggle and joy and journeys of wonder and delight. Be amazed by the crossing of the Red Sea, Ruth’s faithfulness, David standing up to Goliath and Esther’s courage. Let Jesus change our lives with his miracles and compassion.

3. Take turns reading on a regular basis – Challenge one another to retell the story that you have just read. Start to learn the names of the various books of the Bible as well as names of various parables and stories. Get to know individual books of the Bible and strive to see the big picture and how these books and stories fit together.

4. Show them how the Bible is like real life – Jesus tells us in Luke 6 about ways to live and love, how to forgive, and how to care for others. In Matthew’s Gospel, Jesus tells us step by step how to forgive one another. The Bible gives us real life stories and real life solutions so that we can build God’s kingdom here and now. The apostles’ letters tell us how to care for one another and follow Jesus’ way.

5. Talk about how the story is or is not like real life. Ask how the Bible’s teaching helps us to build a better world and become better people. These are God’s stories given to us to show us how God brings hope, healing and love. Sad stories end with joy. Joyful stories are complete with responsibility. We are God’s people, loved and cherished by God. Sometimes, the stories don’t tell us what we want to hear. If so, then what is God teaching us? If you don’t know something, say, “I don’t know why this happens in the story.” Then ask, “What do you think?” Your children will teach you, and you will grow together in faith.

6. Read and retell – Pick a favorite Bible story or verse and read the verses before the verse and then the verses following. Ask some questions: What does the writer want us to know? Where are you and I in the story? What is God asking us to do in this story? How would you feel if you were in this scene? What do you smell, touch, see and feel? If you could change how the story ends, what would you change? How would you tell this story in your own words? At the conclusion of each reading, ask your child: 1) What do today’s readings tell us about God? 2) What did we learn about how to treat other people? and 3) What did we learn about our family and how we should live?

7. Make Bible reading a regular family tradition. Join your children at bedtime and read a story each night, or develop a regular weekend tradition of Bible reading and discussion. Pick a designated time and place and get started – Read in the same place at the same time each day. Bedtime is a great time to read, but do what works best for your family and you. You may try reading an entire gospel together such as the Gospel of Luke to learn more about Jesus’ life. Then try reading the Book of Acts to learn about how the Church began. Offer up prayers of thanksgiving for a life renewed and anchored in God’s Holy Word.

8. Keep a gratitude journal – Each time you finish your Bible reading, write in your gratitude journal about three things that you are thankful for. Count your blessings and give thanks.

9. Give space and silence to let your children talk – How will your children apply these stories in their lives? If, for example, your daughter is sad because she was mistreated by a classmate, in your Bible time you may want to look at stories about love (Matthew 22:34-46), forgiveness (Luke 15:1-3, 11-32), helping (Luke 10:25-37) and friendship (Luke 19:1-10). You don’t have to have all the answers. Reading the Bible stories will give you a safe platform for your discussion. In time, your child might be able to say to her classmate, “I don’t know why you had to be mean to me. I want to be friends.”

10. Set goals – The seasons of Advent and Lent (those times before Christmas and Easter) are often set apart as intentional times to know God working in our lives. Decide to read together Monday through Saturday each week during Advent and Lent. Take Sunday off to listen to the Bible being read in church.

More Options and Going Deeper With Older Children and Youth

1. For older children, these questions can be good for discussions: 1) What do today’s readings tell me about God? 2) What do they tell me about other people? 3) What do they tell me about myself? Ponder these questions alone, with a friend or a group.

2. Harness the power of technology and download the Bible for free – Children are digital natives and love technology. Consider downloading the Bible on your iPad, iPhone, Kindle, or Nook. Keep the Bible with you at all times. YouVersion.com and bible.com offer numerous Bible reading plans from reading a Bible in a year to Bible reading plans exploring faith, love, etc. The site includes downloads of mobile apps and apps for smart phone iPad, Blackberry, and Android phones. Oneyearbibleonline.com offers a reading plan divided into daily readings containing a passage from the Old Testament, the New Testament, Psalms, and Proverbs. Biblegateway.com is a great searchable

Bible with multiple options for finding just what you need. Bibleresources.bible.com is another site with good resources. Amazon.com, Zondervan.com, and BN.com offer an array of Bibles and downloads available for Kindles, Nook Readers, Smart phones, Blackberry, and Android Phones, including Dramatized Audio Bibles.

3. Listen to the Bible – There are many resources today that will allow your children and you to listen to the Bible as you ride in the car, drive to school, walk your dog, travel, do arts and crafts, or relax at home or in bed. For auditory learners, this is especially helpful. You can listen to the Bible in a variety of translations by using apps and programs from: Audio.com/Bible, listenersbible.com, BibleGateway.com, YouVersion.com or www.faithcomesthroughhearing.com. Faith Comes through Hearing provides audio programs to listen to the Bible in 692 languages. You can listen to the entire New Testament in 40 days for 28 minutes a day.

4. Scripture Memorization – Scripture memorization is a great way to develop your faith and increase your knowledge of the Bible. When we memorize something, it becomes part of us. We can recall it, recite it, and use it to form our thoughts, guide our decisions, and articulate our beliefs. Bible memorization helps to form our character and shape our virtues. There is even an app called BibleMinded that allows you to memorize verses on your own or by following one of several plans. We suggest reading a chapter of the Bible a day and highlighting one verse to memorize. Write it down on an index card. Spend a few minutes trying to memorize it. Take the index card with you and practice reciting it as you drive to school, stop at traffic lights, meditate, study or rest. By the end of the day, you should have it memorized. Reflect on this at the end of the day and be open to what God is telling you.

5. Read the Gospel of Luke and the Book of Acts – If reading a lot of the Bible seems too daunting, begin slowly. Read Luke, a gospel rich in stories about Jesus' life and ministry and full of great parables. This will give you an introduction to the life of Jesus. The Book of Acts will teach you about how the first Christians began to spread Jesus' message and love. (This will also prepare you for our New Testament study next spring!)

6. Do a Parent-Child Bible Challenge or a Family Bible Challenge for Lent – Commit to reading a children's Bible with your child for the 40 days of Lent and invite other families to join you. Get together for play dates and discuss it. Gather with other parents to share your experience and learn from theirs.

7. Utilize different learning styles – Because children have different learning styles, engaging the Scriptures using different methods is helpful. Visual learners benefit from watching the Bible stories. Enjoy Veggie Tales or your favorite Bible stories on YouTube. Tactile learners enjoy manipulatives. Find a favorite Bible verse, cut it into individual words and make it into a puzzle. Auditory learners appreciate hearing the Word read. Practice various techniques in studying the Bible.

8. Share your joy of reading the Bible with someone else – If you have enjoyed and benefited from reading the Bible on a regular basis, share your experience with a friend, neighbor or family member. Consider purchasing a Bible as a gift for them. Tell them about The Bible Challenge, or get their permission to sign them up as a participant. Consider re-reading the Bible with them and meeting regularly to share your thoughts and experiences. It will deepen your relationship with one another and with God.
